G2 Consulting Group Earns Second Amazon Contract

The race to be named Amazon's second headquarters city is on. Nobody knows where Detroit stands in the running, but if metro Detroit is fortunate enough to win the mammoth headquarters competition, it won't be Amazon's first venture in southeast Michigan.

Troy-based G2 Consulting Group provided a geotechnical investigation and is currently providing construction engineering services on an 850,000-square-foot Amazon distribution center in Romulus and has been contracted to provide similar construction engineering services for another Amazon distribution center currently underway in Shelby Township. Seefried Industrial Properties of Atlanta, GA is the developer for the Romulus site. Ryan Companies U.S. of Chicago, IL is the general contractor for both sites.
